

SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME

TRAINING ACTIVITIES 2020 (SECOND HALF)

INTERNATIONAL TRAINING CENTRE OF THE ILO (ITCILO)

The Centre is the training arm of the International Labour Organization, a specialized agency of the United Nations system with the mandate to promote decent work. The Centre has more than 50 years of experience in providing training and learning opportunities as well as advisory services in the fields of social and economic development for the benefit of representatives of:

- governments,
- workers' and employers' organizations,
- other partner organizations like development banks, the United Nations system and the ILO.

To date, more than 290,000 women and men from over 190 nations have benefited from the Centre's training and learning services. In recent years, the Centre has implemented an annual programme of some 500 training activities for the benefit of more than 12,000 participants per year.

The Centre offers short professional training courses, academies, tailor-made learning events, and advisory services for capacity development including the design and implementation of training projects. It also offers Masters programmes run by its Turin School of Development. Activities as face-to-face events take place on our Campus in Turin or in participants' home countries, by distance learning, or through a blend of these two course methodologies.

SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME

Referring simultaneously to the broad definition of sustainable development adopted by the United Nations, which postulates an intrinsic relation between economic, social and environmental well-being, the Sustainable Development Programme (SDP) takes as a starting point the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) in the framework of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

Among the 17 SDGs, particular attention is devoted – from an ILO perspective – to goal 8, which aims to “Promote sustained, inclusive and sustainable economic growth, full and productive employment and decent work for all”.

SDP is currently offering activities linked in different ways to the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and its 17 SDGs, aligned to the three areas of expertise listed below:

- Procurement Management
- Project and Programme Cycle Management
- Decent Work and Sustainable Development

SDP designs and delivers courses in partnership with the ILO, UN sister agencies and key international institutions like the World Bank, regional development banks, universities, and inter-governmental organizations.

The Covid-19 pandemic has affected the global economy and has disrupted some events for the year; however the International Training Centre of the International Labour Organization (ITC-ILCO) is continuing to ensure a wide portfolio of ONLINE courses delivered in English, French, Russian, Spanish, Portuguese and Arabic. We also provide advisory services for public procurement reform at the legal, institutional and managerial levels, as well as assistance in designing, implementing and evaluating development projects and programmes.

In partnership with the University of Turin and in collaboration with other international organizations, the Sustainable Development Programme – within the context of the Turin School of Development – offers a number of Masters programmes that prepare new graduates and professionals, from both developed and developing countries, for immediate involvement in social and economic development work.

PROCUREMENT MANAGEMENT

Public procurement management is a cornerstone of good governance.

It cuts across all economic sectors and constitutes 15-30 per cent of the gross domestic product in most countries, hence its significance for enhancing market competitiveness and sustainable development. Setting up effective national public procurement systems has often been a challenge, not least because of a deficit in competent human resources and the need to keep up to date with the ever-increasing complexity of the legal framework, the globalization of markets, and sophisticated contractual and tendering systems.

By virtue of its long-established partnerships, SDP is in a privileged position to package its procurement management learning offer using the latest thinking and best practices that are promoted by the multilateral system (WB and other IFI, UN, EU, WTO/GPA, OECD, and other development partners) supplemented by its own practitioners' insight into the skills and competencies needed for optimal utilization of available resources in the timely realization of the benefits of sustainable development.

Now and during the last years, SDP is or was involved in capacity building projects focusing among others on:

- transition economies like Azerbaijan, Kyrgyzstan or Vietnam,
- countries engaged in an on-going public procurement reform like Bangladesh (ongoing; <https://cptu.itcilo.org>), Lebanon, Malawi, Morocco, Nepal (ongoing), Rwanda, Somalia, Western Balkans countries, and Turkey,
- countries establishing public procurement rules and regulations and their implementing set of documentation (Iraq and Yemen).

SDP implements a range of tailored activities, from individual courses and smaller learning projects, to large-scale capacity building programmes. We are available to advise further (sdp@itcilo.org).

Two Masters programmes are currently being offered in Turin and cover the above and related topics:

Master in Public Procurement Management for Sustainable Development

(in English language), in partnership with:

UNIVERSITÀ
DI TORINO

From legislative and regulatory to organizational and managerial foundations, this Master's programme in Public Procurement Management for Sustainable Development explores the modern public procurement system. Dive into the study of policy tools and theory with applied assignments and research work to bridge the current deficit in qualified human resources.

This Masters programme has been designed for future public procurement practitioners, managers and officials from ministries, local government bodies and public expenditure supervisory bodies. Procurement and financial auditors, project managers, and recent university graduates who aim to specialize in public procurement management are also invited to apply.

PROJECT AND PROGRAMME CYCLE MANAGEMENT

For a long time, the desired outcomes of development programmes and projects were compromised by a shortage of well-trained project staff.

Amongst the most notable skill deficiencies was proficiency in project and programme cycle management (PPCM). PPCM provides an overall analytical and decision-making framework for results-based management. Proficient use of PPCM techniques is essential when it comes to ensuring that programmes and projects are relevant, feasible and effective in promoting development. In the aftermath of the Paris Declaration on Aid Effectiveness (2005) and the introduction of new ways to deliver development aid, including sector-wide approaches and budget-support funding, the emphasis on Results-Based Management (RBM) in development was heightened. This has raised the levels of competencies needed by national recipient agencies and public administration supervisors.

The flagship activity in the area of Project and Programme Cycle Management is the

Master in Management of Development

(in English language), in partnership with:

UNIVERSITÀ
DI TORINO

The programme offers an applied learning opportunity to explore the theoretical, conceptual and operational frameworks for management of development from a multi-disciplinary perspective, i.e. integrating socio-economic policies with in-depth understanding of the legal, institutional, local and managerial contexts for effective planning and implementation of development programmes and projects.

The programme is intended for officials, young professionals and recent university graduates from the public and/or private sectors, UN agencies, foundations and NGOs members – from developing and developed countries – who are planning to work or who are already working in the area of development.

Distance: 02/11/2020 - 16/04/2021

Turin: 19/04/2021 - 02/07/2021

Distance: 05/07/2021 - 29/10/2021

The Sustainable Development Programme provides training and learning opportunities which explore the full spectrum of competencies needed for successful Project and Programme Cycle Management, including team work, interpersonal skills and advanced tools and techniques to cope with complex systems that characterise programme and project environments. Special emphasis is placed on cross-cutting issues like human rights, gender equity and environmental sustainability.

DECENT WORK AND SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

The promotion of Decent Work features prominently in the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) adopted at the UN Summit on Sustainable Development held in New York in September 2015.

Explicitly linked to goal 8 of the SDGs, the promotion of Decent Work is also implicitly referenced under many targets linked to the other sixteen goals. The training activities of the Centre aim to strengthen the capacity of ILO constituents and other relevant stakeholders to analyse the link between Decent Work and Sustainable Development and to formulate and implement strategies and approaches to make Decent Work a reality for all.

Implementation of the SDGs is the grand aim of the current reform of the UN Development System and therefore navigating the changing processes of the UN's work at the country level is a prominent area of application of the above.

Please find below the selection of open courses in Decent work and sustainable development that could be relevant for the staff of your organization. For more information about the course's objectives, contents and details please refer to the SDP website: <https://www.itcilo.org/teams/sustainable-development-programme> where you can find the complete course descriptions or send an e-mail to sdp@itcilo.org.
