MAIN FEATURES

The Programme focuses on international commercial contracts, with an emphasis on recent developments and the increasing complexity of the laws of global trade, including the impact of new technologies and the role of compliance for MNEs. It also covers the key international institutional and legal frameworks (such as WTO and UNCITRAL, but also investment law). In addition, the Master incorporates a dedicated module on international dispute settlement, arbitration and domestic litigation.

The Programme thus provides general coverage of Contracts, International Institutions, and Dispute Resolution, from the perspectives of comparative private law, public international law, and private international law.

The careers envisaged are those in law firms, legal offices of MNEs, and national and international institutions dealing with the legal issues of international trade.

The Programme has an international and diverse faculty composed of distinguished professors of law and/or practitioners and officials from international organizations. Students may thus acquire not only the legal knowledge to deal with trade and trade-related contractual issues, but also the competencies and practical skills that are necessary for a successful career in the field.

Teaching modalities include distance learning (through structured readings and videos, exercises, case notes and forums) on a dedicated platform; lectures; workshops; case studies; moot courts; and seminars with testimonials. Students actively participate and contribute to the learning process. An academic trip to Geneva to visit some international organizations is included in the Programme.

Participants will benefit from the support and involvement of scientific coordinators and tutors who will assist and advise them throughout the learning period.

BACKGROUND AND PARTNERS

From 1991 to 2010 the International Training Centre of the ILO, the University of Turin and the University Institute of European Studies (IUSE), in collaboration with other world-class universities, offered a shortened version of this Master as a postgraduate course in international trade law.

The programme was expanded and upgraded to a Master of Laws in International Trade in 2010-2011. This decision was taken in recognition of the increasing demand for higher levels of legal specialization and career development in the field of international trade, and coinciding with the decision to establish the Turin School of Development as a unique mechanism for the delivery of joint UN-academic programmes.

- UNCITRAL – a historical partner of the post-graduate course – endorsed the new Master and accepted the status of full partner in 2010.
- UNIDROIT joined the programme as a partner in 2019.

In addition, international organizations, such as WTO, UNCTAD, EU, ICC and renowned universities have played an important role in the Programme and delegated officials and faculty members respectively to join the Scientific Committee and/or to participate in programme delivery.
