BACKGROUND AND RATIONALE

The Maritime Labour Convention, 2006 (MLC, 2006) sets out, in a single instrument, the right of the world's nearly 2 million seafarers to decent conditions of work in almost every aspect of their working and living conditions, including minimum age, employment agreements, hours of work and rest, payment of wages, paid annual leave, repatriation, on board medical care, the use of recruitment and placement services, accommodation, food and catering, health and safety protection and accident prevention, and complaint procedures for seafarers. It revises and consolidates 37 existing Conventions and related Recommendations and uses a new format with some updating, where necessary, to reflect modern conditions and language.

The MLC, 2006 has already been ratified by 97 countries and is continuing to be ratified rapidly.

Countries that have ratified it are under the obligation to report periodically on the measures taken to give effect to its provisions, in accordance with article 22 of the ILO Constitution. Employers' and workers' organizations may submit to their government comments on the reports concerning the application of the MLC, 2006, or may submit comments on its application directly to the International Labour Office. Two bodies examine this information: the Committee of Experts on the Application of Conventions and Recommendations (CEACR) and the Conference Committee on the Application of Standards (CAS). Both Committees have recalled on numerous occasions that failures to fulfil reporting obligations hinder the functioning of the ILO supervisory system as a whole.

The International Training Centre of the ILO (ITCILO), in collaboration with the International Labour Standards Department (NORMES), seeks to assist countries in complying with reporting obligations on the application, in law and in practice, of the MLC, 2006.

WHO IS THE TARGET AUDIENCE?

- Officials who are responsible for the production of reports on the application of the MLC, 2006 ("production-responsible") due under article 22 of the ILO Constitution.
- Officials who have substantive responsibilities for the implementation of the MLC, 2006 who are familiar both with this sector and the employment of seafarers ("implementation-responsible").
- Representatives of employers' and workers' organizations involved in reporting and/or in the implementation of the MLC, 2006 may also benefit from the course.

The prior ratification of the MLC, 2006 by the country is required as a precondition for participation. Furthermore, for each country, it is foreseen that at least two participants (one production-responsible and one implementation-responsible) take part.

WHY SHOULD I JOIN?

To improve the application of the MLC, 2006 by improving reporting on the steps taken by ratifying countries to apply it in law and in practice. By improving reporting by ratifying member States, international supervision will be improved as well, making possible a better dialogue between the ILO supervisory bodies and the State parties.

WHAT WILL I GAIN FROM THE COURSE?

- In-depth knowledge of the instruments and supervisory machinery of the ILS system.
- Ability to use the analysis and pronouncements of the ILO supervisory bodies.
- Capability to determine in which instances domestic judges and lawyers can use international labour law to solve labour disputes.
- Capacity to identify and make use of ILS in key areas.
- Knowledge on how to use the databases on ILS and on case law relying on them.
