ENDING VIOLENCE AND HARASSMENT IN THE WORLD OF WORK
KNOW THE FRAMEWORK, OWN THE PRINCIPLES, ADVOCATE FOR CHANGE

OVERVIEW

SNAPSHOT OF THE COURSE
Violence and harassment in the world of work are a threat to the dignity, security, health and well-being of everyone, affecting not only workers and employers, but also their families, communities, economies and society at large. In June 2019, through the adoption of ILO Convention no. 190 and Recommendation no. 206, the global community made it clear that such phenomenon cannot be tolerated, and the world needs to be equipped to put a stop to it. What are the transformative elements which make these new instruments truly ground-breaking? How is gender-based violence positioned in this new scenario? What is the part that different stakeholders in the world of work have to play? Where to start when it comes to sensitizing others, building engagement and advocating or positive change towards effective prevention and addressing of the issue? Find out in this 6-week e-learning journey, culminating at the kick-off of the “16 days of activism against GBV”: build the momentum you need to initiate change in the world around you.
