BACKGROUND

The Maritime Labour Convention 2006 (MLC, 2006) of the International Labour Organization entered into force on 20 August 2013 – as amended in 2014, 2016 and 2018. Since then, there has been a strong momentum for widespread ratification. The Convention applies to most of the interested parties (Flag States, Port States and labour supplying countries).

Despite the high level of ratification challenges remain in the concrete application of the rights and obligations provided for the Convention. In this context, the maritime labour inspectors play an important role in the respect of the MLC, 2006 application. The proper application of labour legislation depends on an effective labour inspectorate. Labour inspectors examine how national labour standards are applied in the workplace and advise employers and workers on how to improve the application of national law in such areas as working time, wages, occupational safety and health, and child labour. In addition, labour inspectors bring to the notice of national authorities gaps and defects in national law. They play an important role in ensuring that labour law is applied equally to all employers and workers.

Recently, many countries are striving to make progress toward an effective implementation of the Convention with a particular focus on the need to set up and keep up an effective inspection system in compliance with the MLC, 2006 requirements.

The COVID-19 pandemic has severely disrupted the functioning of shipping and affected the work of nearly 2 million seafarers worldwide. Numerous governments and seafarers' and ship owners' organizations have turned to the International Labour Office (ILO) for guidance on how best to address the complexities of the current crisis in light of the provisions of the Maritime Labour Convention, 2006 (MLC, 2006), as amended.

WHO IS THE TARGET AUDIENCE

Trainers of maritime inspectors, including labour inspectors with experience of maritime inspection (maritime labour inspectors).

WHY SHOULD I JOIN

The e-learning course aims to share information and good practices in the implementation of MLC 2006 as well as the recent amendments to the Convention, in order to:

- promote a sound application of the Convention at national and regional level;
- strengthen the capacity of Competent Authorities to implement the MLC, 2006 by training a core group of inspectors and trainers with a good level of understanding of the Convention and of inspection techniques;
- enhance cooperation and networking.

WHAT WILL I GAIN FROM THE COURSE

At the end of the e-learning course, participants should be able to:

- demonstrate a good level of understanding of the MLC, 2006 and explain its key concepts, its implications and its practical application in the professional activity of maritime labour inspectors, including knowledge of the Guidelines for Flag State inspections under the Maritime Labour Convention, 2006 and Guidelines or Port State Control Officers carrying out inspections under the Maritime Labour Convention, 2006;
- apply active learning methods in running workshops for maritime labour inspectors, using structured training materials expressly designed for the course and provided to participants;
- adapt the training materials to their own national laws and local practices; and
- organize, manage, facilitate, monitor and evaluate training activities for maritime labour inspectors in their own countries.
