OVERVIEW

SNAPSHOT OF THE COURSE

Labour inspection systems around the world are undergoing rapid transformation as new technologies reshape how compliance with labour standards is monitored and enforced. Digital tools such as predictive analytics, mobile inspection applications, geospatial dashboards, and integrated case management platforms are increasingly enabling inspectorates to plan strategically, target risks more effectively, and improve follow-up with workers and employers. Harnessing these innovations is essential to strengthen accountability, reduce administrative burdens, and ensure that inspection services remain responsive to the evolving world of work.

This course offers a unique opportunity for labour inspectors and related stakeholders to build hands-on skills in the use of digital solutions for workplace compliance. Through a blended format combining online learning with a residential workshop in Turin, participants will explore the full spectrum of digital transformation in labour inspection—from data-informed planning and mobile-enabled field operations to real-time case management and feedback systems. Special attention will be given to data protection, cybersecurity, and ethical considerations in the deployment of new technologies.

By the end of the programme, participants will be better equipped to integrate digital approaches into their daily inspection practices and institutional strategies, enhancing transparency, efficiency, and collaboration across labour administration systems. The training provides a forward-looking platform for professionals committed to modernizing inspection services and ensuring more effective protection of workers' rights in an increasingly digital economy.

WHAT

WHAT WILL I LEARN?

Throughout the expert-led presentations, practical case-studies, and group discussions, participants will have opportunity to:

- Understand how digitalization is reshaping the role of labour inspectorates and the scope of workplace compliance monitoring.
- Explore approaches for using aggregated inspection data, heatmaps and dashboards to inform strategic targeting and policy development.
- Examine the potential of mobile applications, geolocation systems and remote inspection tools to enhance field-based efficiency.
- Review integrated digital case management systems and feedback loops as mechanisms to strengthen transparency, traceability and accountability in enforcement.
- Consider ethical, data protection, and cybersecurity issues linked to the collection, storage and use of digital inspection evidence.

WHAT WILL I BE ABLE TO DO?

Upon completion of the course, participants will be able to:

- Plan and prioritize inspections using dashboards, geospatial mapping, and tailored digital KPIs to target high-risk sectors and enterprises.

MEET THE EXPERTS

Learn from ILO specialists, ITCILO trainers, and external lecturers

- Conduct inspection visits with the support of mobile applications, digital checklists, and secure evidence collection methods, both online and offline.
- Apply innovative inspection methods, including remote video audits, drone-assisted monitoring, and sensor-supported workplace assessments in hazardous environments.
- Manage inspection cases end-to-end using digital platforms, from the initial violation report to enforcement and compliance follow-up, ensuring real-time tracking and transparency.
- Engage employers and workers via online portals, instant feedback systems, and anonymous reporting tools to support two-way communication.
- Apply good practices for integrating digital solutions into inspection workflows while safeguarding ethical standards and data protection requirements.

WHO

WHO TAKES THIS COURSE?

This course is designed for:

- Labour inspectors at central, regional, or provincial levels, as well as managers and senior officials of labour inspectorates.
- Officials from labour administration systems responsible for labour protection, compliance monitoring and digital governance.
- Trainers from labour inspectorate schools, government training institutions, and universities integrating digital technologies into labour administration, OSH or public administration curricula.
- Representatives of workers' and employers' organizations with a strong interest in strengthening labour inspection systems and workplace compliance.
- Experts, consultants, researchers, and ILO project staff working on digital transformation, data-driven policymaking and innovation in labour inspection and labour administration digital governance.

HOW

The course will consist of a total of 60 learning hours, divided as follows:

- Online Phase (15 hours): Online learning combining self-guided modules on the e-Campus platform with live sessions and expert presentations covering the foundational concepts behind the new technologies, artificial intelligence and digitalization.
- Residential Phase (40 hours): 5-day intensive training at the ITCILO in Turin providing a deep dive into the digital solutions for more effective and accountable workplace compliance.
- Post-Course Assignment (5 hours): Individual work to develop an applied project combining the learning outcomes of the course.
